TWO MEN AND A WOMAN PERISH

Launch Turns Turtle and Three Persons Drown.

RESCUED UNDER DIFFICULTIES

Seven Other Occupants of the Boat Saved by Fishermen From the Shore—Craft Turned Over in Maumee Bay From the Weight of the Entire Party, Which Had Collected on One Side of It.

Toledo, O., Aug. 9.—Two men and one woman were drowned and seven men were rescued under difficulties when a launch capsized in Maumee bay. All were residents of Toledo. The dead are:

Harry Dill and Frank Lehaney, both railway employees, and Mrs. Mabel Hudson.

Dill was the owner of the boat and took out the party of ten men and one woman against the protests of his wife.

When over the deep channel near the Maumee river the launch turned turtle from the weight of the entire party, which had collected on one side, and turned over four times.

The woman was in the cabin and was unable to get out, although there were evidences of a desperate struggle on her part. Leo Barnes swam ashore and all of the other men were able to regain the overturned boat and cling to it, except Dill and Lehaney, whose bodies were not recovered.

The endangered men were rescued by fishermen from the shore who heard their cries and ran to the Toledo Yacht club nearby, casting off in four boats. One of the rescuers dove under the overturned boat when it was brought ashore and recovered the woman's body. Dill's young wife was prevented with difficulty from casting herself into the river at the scene of the catastrophe. She told the officers that her husband rarely went out in the launch without her, but that twice he refused her request to return home or take her along, she having sought him out at the casino, and at her solicitation one woman refused to accompany the party.

AUTO PLUNGES OVER CLIFF

Prominent Lumberman and His Chauffeur Killed.

Turners Falls, Mass., Aug. 9.—George Vandyke of Lancaster, N. H., one of the best known lumbermen in New England, and his chauffeur, Frederick B. Hogdon of North Stratford, Vt., were fatally injured when an automobile in which they were riding plunged over a seventy-foot cliff into the Connecticut river at Riverside, opposite here. Both died of their injuries at the hospital. Mr. Vandyke had been watching the work of running logs down stream from an automobile on the top of the cliff. When he was about to return to the lumber camp the chauffeur touched the wrong lever and the machine plunged over the cliff.

GIVES UP HIS LIFE IN VAIN

Boy Perishes in Trying to Save His Companion.

New York, Aug. 9.—Cornelius Bertrand, a boy of sixteen, gave his life in attempting to save his older companion, Charles Zimmerman, who was sinking in the Hudson. Zimmerman, who was a clerk seventeen years old, clutched his would-be rescuer and both perished.

Eight bathers of the thousands driven by a hot day to the Hudson and the lower New York bay were drowned. Of the dead four were young men or boys and one a child of three.

IN TRYING TO SAVE HIS SON

Minnesota Man Loses His Life in Lake Pokegama.

St. Paul, Aug. 9.—Charles Wallin, forty-five years old, and his son, Carl Edwin, thirteen years old, were drowned in Lake Pokegama near Pine City.

Two of the Wallin boys were in swimming and one of them either got too far or was caught in some weeds and his father went out to aid him. But he was unable to help him and could not even save himself.

Five Cases of Drowning.

Philadelphia, Aug. 9.—Five cases of drowning, four the result of bathing, occurred in the vicinity of this city.

TO TAKE PLACE THIS MONTH

Second Invasion of American Waters by German Yachts.

Marblehead, Mass., Aug. 9.—The second German Sonder yacht invasion of American waters will take place this month and there are nineteen Yankee aspirants for the honor of making up the trio that will defend the President Taft and Governor Draper cups in the international series which will begin on Aug. 30. The German trial races were held at Kiel in June and the yachts Hevalta, See-hund II. and Margarethe were selected to contend with the American boats. The American trials will begin off the port on Aug. 16 and will continue until the committee decides which boats are the fastest under all conditions.

Sonder yachts sailing began in this country in 1906 and the Americans successfully defended the President Roosevelt cup, which was won by the Vim. But the next year, in a return match at Kiel, the Yankee boats did not win a race, the emperor's cup going to the Wannsee, owned by Otto Protzon.

This year's contest off Marblehead is therefore the rubber.

Eight leading yacht clubs on the Atlantic coast will be represented in the American trial races, while seven prominent yacht designers have given much thought and study to the development of these yachts.

VETERANS MEET IN SALT LAKE CITY

Thousands Attend Encampment of the Grand Army.

Salt Lake, Aug. 9.—The advance guard of delegates to the forty-third national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, which meets today, has been reinforced by thousands.

Among those arriving were delegations from Ohio, Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, District of Columbia, Michigan, North Dakota, Chicago, West Virginia, Iowa, Pittsburg, South Dakota, Nebraska, Missouri and Indiana.

Department headquarters were opened and tents for the various delegations pitched.

The city was gaily decorated. On every side were displayed pictures of heroes of the Rebellion in settings of electric lights.

Wednesday is the feature day, when from 10,000 to 15,000 veterans will parade. On Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights campfires will be held, at which several national figures will speak.

In the programme of entertainment will be four concerts at the tabernacle, where special music will be given by the tabernacle choir.

St. Louis and Atlantic City are the principal contestants for the honor of entertaining the next encampment. For commander-in-chief former Governor Van Sant of Minnesota and former Attorney General William Ketcham of Indiana are mentioned.

BODY FOUND IN CLAY HOLE

Son of Prominent New Yorker Drowned in Chicago.

Chicago, Aug. 9.—John C. Diehl, forty-one years old, son of George H. Diehl of New York city, retired manager of the Hamburg-American Steamship line, was found dead in a clay hole on the outskirts of the city. The hole contained about thirty feet of water and Diehl's body was seen on the surface by two laborers.

The coat, with a watch and pocket-book still in it, and the hat of the dead man were found at the side of the hole. There were no marks of violence on the body.

Diehl was without money and had tried to borrow $5 from a friend until his usual allowance came from his father.

IOWA GIRL ENDS HER LIFE

Commits Suicide in a Sensational Manner at Harvey.

Des Moines, Ia., Aug. 9.—Following a quarrel between her stepfather and mother at Harvey, Helen Mattox, a beautiful fifteen-year-old girl, committed suicide in a sensational manner. The girl locked herself in the bedroom and arraying herself in white knelt down in front of a mirror and fired a rifle bullet through her heart. She was found by her stepfather, W. A. Montgomery.

KING GUSTAV INTERVENES

Vainly Tries to End Big Labor Conflict in Sweden.

SITUATION IS VERY SERIOUS

Tie-Up of the Business Life of the Country So Complete That Monarch Exhorts Parties at War to Come to an Agreement at the Earliest Possible Moment—Advices Arbitration of Disputed Questions.

Stockholm, Aug. 9.—The tie-up of the business life of the country as a result of the general strike is so serious that King Gustav has intervened in an endeavor to secure a compromise. His majesty sent a message to the parties at conflict exhorting them to come to an agreement at the earliest moment possible and advising arbitration of the disputed questions.

It was after King Gustav's message had been read and approved at a cabinet meeting Saturday that his majesty summoned to the palace the two leaders of the warring factions, Director Von Sydow of the employers and Senator Linquist, president of the federation of trades unions, for a conference. The result of this conference has not yet transpired, but apparently his majesty's efforts for a peaceful solution of the trouble was without result, for it was announced that the printers would strike today and the national labor conference stated that today every dray or other wagon whose driver is not wearing a union permit badge will be stopped by the strikers. No exception, it was stated, will be made for owners driving their own wagons.

The union further threatens to frustrate the attempt of the stockholders of the street car company to start its cars on the important lines with the aid of the company's officials and strike-breakers. Over 1,000 telephone and telegraph employees will strike Wednesday. The employers' association is paying out $40,000 daily to support its weaker members. The cash in the association's treasury is sufficient to keep up this support for three weeks and when the funds in the treasury are exhausted the association has a reserve fund of $4,500,000 which may be used. The strikers daily are receiving large contributions from Denmark, Norway, Finland, Germany, Roumania and Bulgaria.

A prominent journalist, Gustafson, has been summoned to court by the public prosecutor charged with a crime against the penal code, that of exhorting the employees of the state railway to strike.

MICHIGAN MURDER MYSTERY

Body of a Woman Found in a Clump of Brush.

Detroit, Aug. 9.—The badly mutilated body of a woman about thirty-five years of age was found in a clump of underbrush in Hamtramck, this county. The condition of the body indicates that the woman was assaulted and killed.

The body was found by Justice of the Peace Hunk of Highland Park. It was lying on its back, with the skull crushed and the face and body covered with bruises. The clothing was disarranged. A handkerchief, supposedly belonging to the victim, was several feet away, as was also her purse, which had been torn open, and nothing which might serve to identify the body lay around it.

The ground for yards around was torn up, and bits of flesh were in the fingernails of the woman, indicating that she made a valiant fight.

THE JEFFRIES-JOHNSON FIGHT

Many Bids Expected for It in the Next Ten Days.

New York, Aug. 9.—Bids for the Jeffries-Johnson fight for the heavyweight championship are expected in numbers within the coming ten days and the pots of pugilism will again boil over in the discussion of the coming mill between the erstwhile boilermaker and the negro. While many offers for the fight will doubtless be made by clubs in various parts of the country, it is well understood by Sam Berger, manager for Jeffries, who is now in this city, and the manager of Jack Johnson, that only two states will permit a heavyweight championship mill within their borders—Nevada and California.

While Berger is anxious to select the best battleground possible from a financial viewpoint, Jeffries before his departure for abroad last Thursday made it plainly understood that he would prefer to fight in the United States.

"This country is the place in which to fight for the championship," Jeffries told Berger, "and don't forget that when you consider the bids."

Hugh McIntosh, who pulled off the Johnson-Burns fight in Australia, is awaiting Jeffries' arrival in Europe and will doubtless make an alluring proposition to the retired champion to battle with Johnson in the Antipodes. Offers for the mill are not unlikely to be received from the National Sporting club of London and the Crique de Paris.

With the selection of the battleground and the placing of the forfeit in the hands of the stakeholder, Jeffries and Johnson will go at once into active training.

SAMUEL FRANCIS SMITH IS DEAD

Pardoned Embezzler Dies on His Way Home.

Des Moines, Ia., Aug. 9.—Samuel Francis Smith, embezzler, former mayor of Davenport and son of the man who wrote "America," died in a hospital at Toronto, Can. He was taken from a train bearing him to Newton Center, Mass., where his wife and daughter awaited his coming after five years' separation. Smith was released last Thursday from the state reformatory at Anamosa on orders from Governor Carroll. His sentence was suspended because of his old age. He had served five years of an eleven years' sentence.

Samuel Francis Smith was one of the most highly respected citizens of Iowa. A former mayor of Davenport, a brilliant lawyer, a banker, active in church work, he had many friends and no enemies. Son and namesake of the man whose pen phrased the words of America's national hymn, he was an honored member of the Sons of the American Revolution. Sprung from proud New England stock, Mr. Smith and his wife were among the most prominent people of Davenport.

They had one child, an invalid daughter on whom they lavished their wealth. Suddenly whispers began to spread followed by open charges.

Smith was placed under arrest. Examination of his books showed that he was a defaulter to the extent of $100,000 of trust funds entrusted to him.

He admitted his guilt and asked for a speedy trial. He did not ask for mercy. Mrs. Smith sold her mansion in Davenport to appease creditors.

TO RECOVER FALSE TEETH

Operation Performed Upon a Pennsylvania Man.

Punxsutawney, Pa., Aug. 9.—Few physicians ever operated upon a man with the same object as did the doctors at the Adrian hospital here when an abdominal incision was made on Peter Jackson, a white man, who while drinking a bottle of pop at his home, dislodged his false teeth and swallowed them. A physician, unable to recover the molars, forced them into the man's stomach and then rushed him to the hospital, where the operation was performed. Jackson is in a critical condition.

PASSENGER TRAINS COLLIDE

One Man Killed and Four Other Persons Injured.

Memphis, Tenn., Aug. 9.—Carelessness or nervousness on the part of Arthur Bell, a negro porter, caused him to give a switch the wrong throw at Galloway, Tenn., twenty-eight miles east of this city, and southbound passenger train No. 103 on the Louisville and Nashville railroad crashed into northbound passenger train No. 102, which was standing on the switch. Joe Lewis of Memphis, engineer on the southbound train, met instant death and four other persons were injured.

WEATHER FORECAST
Generally fair tonight and Tuesday.

THE attention of the city council is called to the condition of the street signs in various sections of the city. In many places the posts at the corner of the streets bearing the designations have been pulled up and thrown on vacant lots, and in other cases the metal signs have either been wrenched from the posts or defaced so that they have lost their usefulness. It is one of the regulations of the postoffice department that in cities where free delivery of mail is maintained that street signs shall be erected and kept in good condition. At the time the service was installed here that was one of the serious questions, the expense of erecting posts and signs. It was done, however, and the city paid for it, and the question now arises as to why the proper attention has not been to keeping them in condition. An inspection by the postal department would certainly find them in very bad form.

A LITTLE FALLS CANDIDATE
The Little Falls Transcript in its Saturday issue brings out Hon. C. A. Lindbergh, congressman from the Sixth district, as a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor. The Transcript says:
"While the papers of the state are bringing out new candidates for the Republican nomination for governor or worrying about the ability of those mentioned to win, the voters of the Sixth district could very easily give the name of one who would be a stronger candidate than any yet mentioned. When speaking of the Sixth one naturally connects the name of Congressman Lindbergh with its welfare, and while his constituents would prefer that he continue in his present position, it is a well established fact that he today has the respect and confidence of every Republican voter within the confines of Minnesota. Not alone is this feeling toward the congressman confined to Republicans, but many Democrats would be pleased to support him for governor. Mr. Lindbergh has earned for himself a place in the hearts of Minnesotans which was never before attained by a congressman, especially when the length of service to his constituents is considered. In the session of congress just closed he was for the people first and last and his popularity has now reached a point which spells danger to any political opponent, whether in a congressional or gubernatorial fight. The congressman was mentioned a year ago as good gubernatorial material, but he believed that his services were of much more value to his constituents in his present position."

CHIEF TARIFF EXPERT
How an Army Officer Became Aldrich's Greatest Helper.

WAS DINGLEY'S SECRETARY.

Revision Work Major Herbert Lord Did Twelve Years Ago Won Him His Military Commission—Said to Know More About the Tariff Than Any Other Living Man.

The brand "U. S. army" will have to be placed somewhere on the new tariff bill by reason of the highly important contribution of Major Herbert M. Lord, U. S. A., to the work of preparing it.

That an army officer should be the chief of all the tariff experts of the great committee on finance has been the occasion for a good many jokes since the bill came from committee. Senator J. P. Dolliver painted a thrilling word picture of Major Lord, ensconced in a private office in the senate office building, his name on the door, arrayed in all the bravery and panoply of war, figuring percentages and counting the threads in square inches of cotton fabrics. While it seems a bit funny, the fact is that Major Lord knows more about tariff than any other one man now extant. More than that, instead of his army training making him a tariff expert, his tariff expertness made him an army officer.

Possessor of a Wonderful Memory.

Major Lord's career as a tariff expert began about fourteen years ago. He was a Maine man and became secretary of Governor Dingley about two years before the Dingley revision was taken up. He developed great aptitude for the work, having a great "head for figures" and a memory which everybody admitted couldn't be beaten. He had no notion of becoming a soldier. In anticipation of the revision which was coming on he set about studying tariff. He learned the story of all the schedules and tariff acts from the beginning, read the debates and affiliated with the customs experts till he knew all they did and remembered every word and decimal point of it all.

So by the time the Dingley bill had become law Lord was recognized by both Dingley and Aldrich, as well as by Allison and the rest of its makers, as the greatest living aggregation of accurate tariff information. President McKinley had come to know and like him; in fact, knew him quite well before he was elected president.

Excellent Record in the Philippines.

After the tariff act had passed President McKinley indicated a desire to do something for Mr. Lord. The Spanish war came on, and Lord was offered a commission as captain paymaster and sent to the Philippines. There his service was excellent. His accounts were always accurate and complete, and he won promotion to a majority on his merits. He was quietly pursuing his army career when the revision of 1909 became imminent, and Senator Aldrich sent for him. Could he help out the finance committee again? Certainly. Did he think he had preserved such accurate recollection of all those detailed transactions of twelve years ago as would be reliable and secure? Of course he had. He demonstrated right away that he knew the old tariff law in every detail. That settled it. He was detailed by the army people to the special service of helping to make the tariff bill and became the alter ego of Senator Aldrich.

"What sort of bill are you going to make?" an old friend asked him soon after he had settled down to work.

"You were here when we made the last one?" he countered.

"Yes, I was."

"Do you recollect what sort that was?"

"It's generally understood to have been of the upward style," was the reply.

"Well," Major Lord replied, "that's the only kind I know how to write. Wait and see how it comes out."

And the friend to whom he made that observation is luging it around as the evidence that if justice were done to everybody in tariff making affairs this bill would be known as the Lord bill.—Washington Cor. New York Telegram.

The Musical Lawn Mower.

[A New Jersey man has invented an attachment to a lawn mower which will produce music while the grass is being cut.—News Note.]

Oh, give back the days of the old-fashioned clatter.

When, at the first peep of the dawn, Your neighbor—you called him as mad as a hatter—

Went mowing his long whiskered lawn! For now he's "improved" it with themes operatic

That complicate matters anew. And the language you hurl is both loud and emphatic

As the tunes of the mowing reach you.

He begins with a scene from some stand-by from Verdi

Which drowns out the click of the blades.

And he turns on a bit from old "Carmen," so sturdy.

When he trims off the terrace's grades. And you toss on your bed, and you curse at Puccini.

And you wish to see quartered and drawn

This neighbor of yours who's so low down and mean he Makes music while mowing the lawn. —Arthur Chapman in Denver Republican.

Balzac's Poverty.
An anecdote of Balzac shows the strange condition of poverty in which he lived even after he had won fame. He made a visit one evening to the house of one of his pet admirations, Rossini, where he found a party assembled and among them a great singer, then the rage, who had declined to favor the company. Ignorant of this, Balzac begged her to sing a song. "For you? Why, of course, at once." And she did. "Who on earth can that be?" asked an astonished guest of Rossini. "Don't you know? It's M. de Balzac." "Oh, really! Then no wonder."
And all the morning Balzac had been trying to borrow a few francs.

BUILDING NEW OFFICE

Swift & Co. will Erect New Office and Otherwise Improve Their Brainerd Plant

The removal of Swift & Company's offices a few feet farther north, to make room for the Dower Lumber company's big shed, will result in decided improvements to the plant. The carpenters are at work on a new office building 14x24 feet with 14 foot posts. The office will be set up four feet to bring the office on the same level as the platform and car floors. The old office will be moved and used as a warehouse in connection with the present sheds. The entire plant with the switch track will be about 20 feet farther north than at present. When completed the plant will be much improved in appearance.

Many people with chronic throat and lung trouble have found comfort and relief in Foley's Honey and Tar as it cures stubborn coughs after other treatment has failed. L. M. A PRECOCIOUS DOG.

The Wonderful Feats He Performed For Joseph Jefferson.
There is a story that is told of Joseph Jefferson and the boys that had to do with the training of dogs. It appears that there was a gentleman in New Iberia who owned a very intelligent animal, and he was most anxious for Mr. Jefferson to see an example of his prowess. Accordingly he brought him to the island one day and put him through his various tricks, which were remarkably clever.

When the performance was over Mr. Jefferson expressed his appreciation and wonder at what the dog had done, but added that he had an animal that was even more remarkable. As the gentleman seemed to be in some doubt as to the truth of this statement the dog, a dejected, stupid looking beast, was produced, and Mr. Jefferson ordered him to go into his room and bring him a shoe.

Obediently the dog trotted into the house to presently reappear with the shoe in his mouth. Taking it from him, Mr. Jefferson patted him upon the head and told him to return to his room and bring him the slipper for his left foot.

"And, mind you, bring the left one," he cautioned as the animal trotted away.
When he returned in a moment with the left slipper the gentleman could hardly express his astonishment, but Mr. Jefferson waved the matter indifferently aside.

"It is nothing," said he. "However, we will now try something a little more difficult." Then, turning to the dog, he spoke to him very slowly and carefully. "Now go into the library," said he, "look upon the bottom shelf on the right hand side of the room and you will see a set of Dickens. Bring me the second volume. Remember, now, the second volume; not the first or the third, but the second."
When the dog returned in a few moments with the second volume in his mouth the gentleman retired in the utmost confusion, declaring that in comparison with such a prodigy his own much vaunted animal was little better than an imbecile.

And I may add that Mr. Jefferson enjoyed the joke fully as much as did the boys, who, according to a prearranged plan, had placed each successive article in the prodigy's mouth. As to the prodigy, his one accomplishment consisted of trotting into the house and trotting out of it again.—Nevill G. Henshaw in Bohemian.

"After You, Alphonse."

In days of old, when Boabdil Was easy to El Cid, That pride of Spanish chivalry Went out to do and die! He called his knights of Aragon, He called the peasants poor, And then he quite successfully Cleaned up the turbaned Moor.

In those old days a man thought naught Of joining in a strife, Because his king had summoned him He gladly gave his life, But times have changed. Now people want—

Yea, even in Castle— To be assured their sacrifice Will aid the common weal.

Oh, where is Spanish chivalry? Alphonse doth lament, With other things, like rights divine, Some time ago it went Away till now the common folks, Who used to gladly die Because their masters told them to, Are asking, "Tell us—why?"

Alfonso is a father now. He ought to understand That other folks have children, too, Throughout his native land, And, though he shoots those children down, I'll bet their last cry haunts, And he can see no humor in "We're after you, Alphonse!" —New York World.

Origin of the Word Academy.

Academeus was a wealthy Greek of Athens who lived several hundred years before the birth of Christ. Among his possessions was a beautiful grove, where young men used to congregate and listen to the teachings of wise men, such as Plato and Socrates. This developed into the school of modern times, and these modern schools take their name "academy" from the old Greek, Academeus. The real meaning of the word academy is a school for boys.

Sunday School Picnic.

The First Methodist Episcopal church will give its annual Sunday School picnic on Wednesday of this week and enjoy an outing at Merrifield. Through the courtesy of the M. & I. officials, the train conveying the picnicers will leave the Brainerd depot at 8 o'clock sharp, calling at Kindred street and N. E. Brainerd, and will leave Merrifield at 5, giving plenty of time to reach the city for the supper hour. The price for adults for the round trip is 34 cents, for children from five to twelve, 17 cents, and those under five years of age no charge will be made. The officers of the Sunday school extend a hearty invitation to the parents of the children and all who would care to go and enjoy a day's outing. Last year many of the Brainerd people took this opportunity of visiting the picnic grounds at Merrifield, which have been much improved lately, and it is hoped that more will go this year. Boating, fishing, and a general athletic program will enliven the day's pleasure. Should the weather be inclement on Wednesday, let it be understood that the picnic will take place on Thursday.

Table Mountain.

At Capetown, in South Africa, where the traveler usually has the first glimpse of the continent, is Table mountain, a magnificent natural curiosity which rises behind the city to the height of almost 4,000 feet and has a level top about three square miles in area. Its resemblance to a huge table is so marked that the dense clouds which collect at times around the summit are referred to as the tablecloth. A pretty little flower which is found nowhere else on earth grows on top, while on the northern side of its base is a similarly rare tree, popularly called the silver leaf tree.

The Slow One.

"Would you," he said after they had been sitting in the dark for a long time, "be angry with me if I were to kiss you?"

She was silent for a moment. Then in tones the meaning of which was not to be mistaken she replied:

A Chronic Grumbler.

Charles Lamb tells of a chronic grumbler who always complained at whist because he had so few trumps. By some artifice his companions managed to fix the cards so that when he dealt he got the whole thirteen, hoping to extort some expression of satisfaction, but he only looked more wretched than ever as he examined his hand. "Well, Tom," said Lamb, "haven't you trumps enough this time?" "Yes," grunted Tom, "but I've no other cards."

THE HURRYING BARBER.

Speed Manifested More in the Motions Than in the Results.

"Barbers," remarked the man with the short hair, "are born unable to hurry. Just you go into a shop, as I did the other day, wanting a hair cut, and ask the barber how long it will take. He told me, 'Oh, about twenty minutes!' and I said to go ahead.

"That barber honestly believed he was hurrying, but he couldn't leave out those little snip-snips about the back of the neck they are all so fond of doing, and he had to cut the hair as if he were chiseling priceless marble. When it got to be about half an hour I said to him, 'You're a pretty bad judge of time, aren't you?' He came back with something about not wanting to turn out a poor job.

"I've known it to happen often in the case of shaving. When you tell a barber to hurry he dashes around on the tiled floor at imminent risk of falling, and he splashes the lather into your eyes and your mouth, but the fact remains that he takes as much time as usual to rub the lather into your face and as much time to shave you.

"I begin to believe there is some sort of rule regarding time that all barbers observe, because I have timed them. Once I asked a barber to hurry shaving me, and he had all the motions, but took up just as much time as when he went along at his usual gait. "I imagine they believe the customer will be satisfied with the appearance of speed, and that's the reason they run around so and breathe heavily as if winded when changing from one side of the chair to the other."—New York Sun.

Children of Criminals.

It is a curious fact—one all at variance with the doctrines of heredity, but borne out by police records—that the children of crooks, of all classes, rarely turn out to be crooks themselves. Deeper study of the subject might reveal that they are possessed of the criminal instincts, but that the tragically close example of the punishment and wretchedness that attend a criminal career has been a terrifying deterrent. The fact, at any rate, remains. The rogues' galleries of Scotland Yard, New York and Chicago may be studied in vain for the photographs of a father and a son.—Argonaut.

HOOKING ALLIGATORS.

A Florida Sport With an Element of Uncertainty in It.

"Hunting alligators at night with a bullseye lantern and shotgun is tame sport compared with what is called a gator hunt in Florida," said an old Floridian who is visiting New York. "I mean the feat of capturing an alligator. Live and then towing the fellow to high ground through mud and water from what is called in Florida a gator hole.

"The gator fishermen first find the hole, which is indicated by an opening in the surrounding grass in the midst of a dense growth of vegetation, where the ground is worn smooth by the alligator in his pulls in and out. Sometimes these gator holes are in the nature of a cave in the bank of a stream and may be fifteen or twenty feet deep, and if so it is not an easy matter to get the animal out.

"The fisher is supplied with a long pole with a metal hook on the end. He takes a strong rope and throws it about the entrance of the hole. Then the fisher rams with the hooked pole down the den and waits and listens. If he finds a gator in the hole he teases the beast by poking him until the gator in a rage finally grabs the hooked pole and is pulled from the den. It is with uncertainty that he is dragged forth, for it is not known whether the catch is large or small. The fisher does not know whether to get into shape to run or to fight. Out the gator comes, bellowing and roaring mad.

"After the gator is dragged to the surface he in his rage turns and rolls and finally twists himself up in the rope or noose that has been previously prepared. With the assistance of the others in the party the gator's legs and mouth are tied and the gator is a prisoner.

"The gator is for the most part caught in marshes where the ground is soft and slushy and too wet for either horse or wagon to enter. The fishers are compelled to carry their catch to higher ground, there to be loaded into the waiting wagon, and the hunt is ended."—New York Sun.

"Jones is sure the prize ass."

"Oh, no, he isn't. He doesn't know enough to be that. But he'd make a good understudy for one."—Exchange.

PEARY RELIEF SHIP.

Mission of the Stanch Jeanie in the Arctic Regions.

TO FIND NORTH POLE SEEKERS

Captain Bartlett, Who Says Present Expedition is Last Dash Intrepid Explorer Will Ever Make For North Pole, Believes Dr. Cook and Harry Whitney Will Be Waiting at Etah.

That the schooner Jeanie, which recently sailed from St. John's, N. F. with fifty tons of coal and other supplies for the relief of Robert E. Peary will be the last relief ship ever to venture in the northern seas for that explorer is the belief of Captain Samuel W. Bartlett, the Jeanie's commander and dean of all the navigators who have explored the polar seas, and others who know the plans of Mr. Peary. He practically admitted when he said goodbye to Captain Bartlett at Etah almost a year ago that if he did not find the north pole on this trip it would be a task for a younger man to take up, with possibly new methods.

"Mr. Peary is getting along in years and it is doubtful if he would want to take charge of another expedition," declared Captain Bartlett. "To a few of his friends he has confessed the fact that he would like to make one try for the south pole, but he has not given that adventure any serious consideration. Yet it is because Mr. Peary realized that this would be perhaps his last chance to attain the goal of the years of work and suffering that many persons in St. John's regard it very doubtful if he will ever come back from the expedition. They declare he will take the most desperate chances to reach the pole, and desperate chances in the polar region may mean more than a simple failure."

Confident of Eskimo Skill.
Captain Bartlett has great confidence in the ability of the Eskimo in his native climate, and it is because of his confidence that he will not be surprised if Dr. Cook is awaiting the Jeanie when she arrives at Etah. When Dr. Cook crossed Smith's sound to Ellesmere Land and took an untraveled route to the north pole he had with him two of the best Eskimo guides, men resourceful in the emergencies which confront the arctic traveler. "I know what those huskies can do," said Captain Bartlett, "and if they are alive I have every confidence that they will bring Dr. Cook through. I believe that he is alive today. He had plenty of ammunition, and Ellesmere Land, through which he traveled on his way farther north, is filled with game. Even if the ammunition were exhausted those natives would have no difficulty in getting meat to keep the party going for any length of time."

"At the same time, if Dr. Cook is not at Etah when the Jeanie arrives there in the latter part of this month (August) I will believe that he is not alive. He has had plenty of time to make any dash to the pole he had a chance to make and to return in time to cross over Smith's sound on the ice, for that is just beginning to break up now. The ice is hardly ever out of there before Aug. 5, and it will not surprise me a bit to have Dr. Cook waiting with Harry Whitney for the Jeanie. If Dr. Cook is there he will have a remarkable story to tell. He went alone, unhampered by a party, and his trip was a novelty in arctic explorations."

The provisions on board the Jeanie will give variety enough for any one, with the exception that there will not be fresh meat. This will be made up in part when the boat arrives at Etah, for there will be wild duck long before it is being served in the New York restaurants, and even if there is no hominy and no sweet potatoes to go with it the duck will be appreciated for itself.

Greenland Game Plentiful.
That is only a sample of the game the Greenland visitor can have. The reluder will give the choicest venison. Even the hare of England is said to lack the favor that those shot on the Greenland plains have. There are no game laws in Greenland, and the Jeanie will be there the latter part of August, when the shooting is at its best.

The vegetables taken on a trip of this kind are mostly potatoes and onions, but there are canned goods of all kinds, and enough, so there would have to be the worst kind of luck if the Jeanie should not get back before they are exhausted.

Ammunition and tobacco in quantities are among the Jeanie's freight. There is also on the Jeanie a large amount of lime juice, another necessary article for arctic travelers, for it is used to offset the absence of vegetables in the prevention of scurvy.

The Jeanie is a craft of ninety-eight tons burden. She carries two masts and 1,000 yards of canvas. The oil engine which has been installed is of thirty-six horsepower and will be used on the trip when there is no wind.

May Not See Peary at All.
The Jeanie's primary purpose is to carry fifty tons of coal to Etah, west Greenland, Peary's headquarters there, for the use of his steamer Roosevelt on her return south. Peary's plan when he went north in the steamer Roosevelt last year was to force her into the polar basin and then dash over the ice toward the pole last spring, retreating south afterward, if successful, and connecting with the auxiliary expedition in his steamer and using the coal the Jeanie will land to bring the steamer back to America. If Peary failed to reach the pole the past spring he will remain north this year, and the coal will be useful for the same purpose next summer. In this case Peary will send down dispatches from his advanced base to Etah by Eskimos, and the Jeanie will be guided by the instructions contained therein, so it is quite possible she may not see Peary at all. She will, however, bring home Harry Whitney, an American sportsman, who went to Etah last year in the Roosevelt to hunt musk ox and walrus and return this year. Dr. Cook, the rival explorer, will likewise be brought back.

After the Jeanie has completed her work at Etah she will return to Ponds Inlet, Baffin Land, where she will try to secure a load of arctic salmon for sale in New York. She carries three salmon nets and thirty tons of curing salt. She expects to return to St. John's about Oct. 1.

The person who betrayed the most emotion when the Jeanie went out of St. John's was Mene Wallace, the Eskimo youth whom Peary brought to the United States fourteen years ago and who insisted on going back to his native tribe. The United States, besides giving him some education, has filled him with the ambition to find the north pole, and he said before he left that he would find it if Peary or Dr. Cook doesn't. To him alone on the Jeanie the trip "down north" as they say in St. John's, was going home, and he was glad.

SEAL ON LITTLE RED SCHOOL.

Movement to Establish Graded System in Place of Pioneer Method.

The national corn exposition to be held at Omaha, Neb., will attempt to put a seal of death on the "little red schoolhouse." Only the corn show does not refer to the single ungraded schoolroom by the above sentimental nomenclature.

The rural high school adopted with great success in many parts of the United States is the aim, and wherever it has been established no farmer would have his children return to the little old school which pioneered for education in every state in the Union and which has been sung by many a poet and celebrated in the "Hoosier Schoolmaster" and other romances where the new teacher always wallops the village bully.

Willett H. Hays, assistant secretary of agriculture, is the man behind this educational gun. He is an enthusiast over the possibilities of consolidation and broadening of the courses in the United States, and during the coming season as soon as school opens the department will make 2,000 feet of film picture showing children being picked up in the carriages, going to school, arriving at the buildings, in the class rooms, boys making things of wood and steel, girls cooking and sewing, classes of the agricultural department selecting seed corn and studying animal industry.

The picture will be seen by the 100,000 or more farmers who will visit the corn show and will go a long way to spread the movement in the middle west.

PRINTERS IN CONVENTION

Union Men Hold Annual Meeting at St. Joseph, Mo.

St. Joseph, Mo., Aug. 9.—The fifty-fifth convention of the International Typographical union convened today in the Coliseum, St. Joseph's big convention hall. Addresses of welcome were made by Mayor Clayton, President Burnham of the local typographical union and others, and a response by President Lynch of the International Typographical union, after which the convention began consideration of a large volume of business, ultimately adjourning until Tuesday morning to hear the report of the credentials committee on contested seats.

The reports of President Lynch and Secretary-Treasurer Hays show great progress made by the union during the past year. The International Typographical union is fifty-seven years old, and with the present gathering has held fifty-five conventions during its lifetime. In 1896 and 1898 biennial conventions were held. The International Typographical union claims to be the oldest national or international organization of skilled labor in the world. Its sessions here this week are attended by 300 delegates and 800 visitors.

Matters of importance that are to come before the convention are propositions for the establishment of an insurance feature, and certain changes proposed in the pension policy that was made effective by the union one year ago. The relations between the union and the American Newspaper Publishers' association will also be up for consideration.

Minneapolis, Minn., appears to have a shade the best of it in the contest for the next convention. Its rivals are Salt Lake City and Atlanta, Ga. Each of these cities has large delegations of boosters.

Girl Killed by a Train.

Mexico, Mo., Aug. 9.—Belle Dudley, fourteen-year-old daughter of William R. Dudley, was killed and her father and sister Ella were seriously injured when the wagon in which they were driving was struck by a freight train near Martinsburg.

The Blood in the Brain.

Too much blood in the brain is a frequent cause of headaches. Pains are felt all over the head, the face becomes flushed, the temples throb and strong light or noise causes excruciating pain. In cases of this kind the sufferer should be careful in diet and should not eat meat oftener than once a day.

Too little blood in the brain is another cause of headache. It is recognized by dizziness, noises in the ears and pains on the top of the head. The best stimulant is a cup of strong tea or coffee or a bowl of soup. People who suffer with these headaches should sleep with their heads low.—London Strand Magazine.

INSURANCE FOR THE POOR.

President of a Prominent Society Tells of New Plan at a Dinner.

A prominent life insurance society closed a three days' convention with a dinner at the Waldorf hotel in New York the other night, at which 900 officials and agents were present. The president of the society presided. In his address of welcome he spoke briefly of a departure in life insurance which his society hopes to take up—namely, a system by means of which poor people may be able to own their own homes. In referring to the new scheme the president said:

"It is our intention, if it can be worked out—and we have no doubt that it can be so arranged that men and women of moderate means with only their daily or monthly wage, which in the majority of cases is so small as to preclude their accumulating a great competence, may by the means of life insurance as practiced by the society purchase their own homes and by a series of small monthly payments provide their own roofs for their families while at the same time they provide against the loss of their homes in the event of early death."

Insurance by the state is neither desirable nor necessary in this land of the greatest life insurance corporations the world has ever known. There is no work of more importance, no service of higher merit, to be performed than that of these great companies of the United States which has done most in the extension of life insurance should take the lead in this honorable work. In no other way can it so justify its mission and render a better account of itself than by pioneering in this field. Therefore I am prepared to announce to you that we are seriously considering and, unless prevented by the powers that be or obstacles not now seen, the future of the society will embrace this very important work."

Souvenirs From a Historic Tree.

Several months ago one of three cedar trees planted by Abraham Lincoln at Lincoln City, Ind., when he was a small boy, blew over in the yard of A. P. Rhodes and promised to go to decay, when A. P. Fenn of Tell City asked for the tree, and it was given him, says an Evansville (Ind.) dispatch. He will have it made into souvenirs. Among those who will receive souvenirs from Mr. Fenn are President Taft, former President Roosevelt, Robert T. Lincoln, only son of the great war president; Henry Watterson, editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal, and Governor Thomas R. Marshall.

A Mammoth Pie.

The annual pumpkin festival at Creston, Ia., has been fixed for Sept. 22 and 23, when the city will be decorated in yellow and gold and the menu will be pumpkin pie "like mother used to make." A single pumpkin pie five feet across and six and one-half feet long will be cut on the second day of the festival for honored guests.

IDEAL PLACE FOR VACATION

President May Enjoy Seclusion in Summer Home.

BUSINESS WILL BE TABOOED

Chief Executive Expects a Number of Visitors During the Summer, But the Calls Will Nearly All Be of a Social Character—Several Matters of Official Business Remain to Be Disposed Of.

Beverly, Mass., Aug. 9.—Sitting on the broad veranda at his summer home on Woodberry Point, President Taft is in the very center of an ideal pleasure ground for a vacation. Secluded there in a beautiful residence park made up of three or four estates and as many palatial cottages, the president will enjoy with Mrs. Taft the cool breezes from the bay and ocean. Looking toward the sea the island-dotted waters of Salem bay are in the foreground and beyond are the broader reaches of Massachusetts bay. Behind are the woods and the pleasant fields of Essex county, with perfect roads for motoring.

If he chooses to maintain complete seclusion he easily may do so on the point of land on which his summer home stands, and may avoid for days all but those whom he wishes to admit to his company.

The president expects a number of visitors during the summer, but the calls will nearly all be of social character and business will be tabooed whenever possible. Many members of the diplomatic corps have their summer homes along this northern shore of Massachusetts and they will be among the first of the president's callers.

If the president cares to direct his attention to yachting, there are a hundred little harbors which he may explore, or the broad Atlantic is within an hour's sail. Across Salem bay and almost within view from his veranda are the Eastern, Corinthian and Boston Yacht club houses, to all three of which he will be welcomed as an honorary member. He will be able to watch the yachtsmen in various races, especially those in preparation for the sander yacht contests with the Germans.

Golf Links Are Handy.

But perhaps the golf links in the neighborhood will prove the strongest magnet during President Taft's sojourn on the north shore. Within easy motoring distance are the links of the Myopia Hunt club, the Essex Country club, the Montserrat Golf club, the Tedesco Country club, the Abenaki club of Rye, N. H., and half a dozen golf clubs in the vicinity of Boston.

While the president will probably do most of his golfing at Essex country in Manchester, four miles away, keen followers of the sport will be particularly interested in his performance on the rolling hills of Myopia, considered by many the premier course of the country. President Taft is accounted a steady, but not a brilliant golfer, and Myopia will test his game as never before.

Mr. Taft has several matters of official business before him during the coming week. He is going to dispose of the matter of census supervisors throughout the entire United States. Secretary of Commerce and Labor Nagel and the director of the census, Durand, are coming to Beverly the latter part of the week with a list of names of formidable length and by the time they leave the president hopes to announce his position.

The president has fixed upon the policy he will follow with reference to census appointments in the South. In the states which are solidly Democratic, the president will divide the appointments equally among the Democrats and Republicans. He will insist that the appointees shall not be active partisans, however, but capable men.

From the so-called "Solid South" the president has picked out North Carolina, Tennessee, Kentucky and Missouri as debatable states and will treat them on the same footing as Northern states, giving all of the census jobs to Republicans. He will insist, however, that in these states the same standard of efficiency and character of men shall obtain.

Mr. Taft has turned over bodily to Mr. MacVeagh, secretary of the treasury, the task of selecting five experts to form a tariff commission under the new law. Mr. MacVeagh has authority to go ahead and select the right men and the president will confirm the selection.

LIGHTNING STRIKES MINE

Three Miners Dead, Four Others in a Serious Condition.

Telluride, Colo., Aug. 9.—Lightning struck the Liberty Bell mine here and as a result three miners are dead. They were overcome by the smoke that filled the lower levels of the mine after the lightning had set fire to the buildings at the mine's mouth. Four other victims of the smoke are in a serious condition. Several were overcome while attempting rescues.

MRS. PARKER WILL TESTIFY

Will Try to Clear Brother's Name of Suicide Stigma.

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 9.—The inquiry into the death of Lieutenant James N. Sutton, Jr., of the United States marine corps will be continued at the naval academy today, when Mrs. Sutton, his mother, and Mrs. Rose Sutton Parker, his sister, will continue their efforts to clear from his name the stigma of suicide which was placed upon it by the findings of the first board of inquiry which sat immediately after the tragedy. Mrs. Sutton will again go on the stand, this time, it is understood, in open session of the court. This session will, however, doubtless be preceded by a closed session of sufficient length to permit the reading and if necessary, correction of the testimony given during the closed session of the court Saturday.

Mrs. Parker will doubtless follow her mother on the stand. From her some interesting testimony is expected, especially with reference to her interviews in her room at the hotel here with Lieutenant Adams and other officers of marines subsequent to her brother's death. Her references to the interview with Lieutenant Adams are especially looked forward to. It is understood that she has a very clear recollection of that occasion touching which Lieutenant Adams himself while on the stand remembered little, though he did testify that he told Mrs. Parker nothing of consequence about the tragedy.

The one other witness known to have been summoned is Frederick Vogg of Washington, but it is not expected that his testimony will be of moment.

Heat Record Broken.

Chicago, Aug. 9.—All local heat records for this year were broken when the thermometer registered 93 degrees at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. The former mark for 1909 was 92 degrees on July 29. A high degree of humidity made the heat harder to bear.

Big Sum for Missionary Work.

Old Orchard, Me., Aug. 9.—Nearly $50,000 for missionary work was raised by Rev. A. B. Simpson of New York within three-quarters of an hour at the annual offering of the Christian Missionary Alliance here. A few hours later this amount was augmented so that the total for the day reached $53,428.

Origin of the Cherry Tree.
As a cultivated fruit the cherry is of eastern origin. The first garden cherries, as well as the name, have come from an old Greek town on the southern shores of the Black sea. The name of the colony was Cerasos, and the inhabitants cultivated the cherry. So in Greek the cherry became cerasos, in Latin cerasus, in French cerise, in English cherry. Pliny relates that the Roman General Lucullus, conqueror of the great Mithridates, brought the cherry from Cerasos to Rome. A tree laden with fruit is said to have adorned his triumphal procession. In the course of the next 120 years the culture of the cherry had spread far and wide and reached even remote Britain.—London Globe.
